

Week 4 Spanish Newsletter

Vocabulary List

tía aunt tío uncle hija daughter hiio son ¿De dónde eres? Where are you from? Soy de ____. I am from . Q, R, Rr, S, T (of the Spanish Alphabet) dieciséis - 16 diecisiete - 17 dieciocho - 18 diecinueve - 19 veinte - 20

Cantamos- Let's Sing

Here is a song to sing at home with your children. Have your child teach you the song!

SANCHO (Sing to the tune of "BINGO") Un perro grande tengo yo Y él se llama Sancho S A N CH O, S A N CH O, S A N CH O Y él se llama Sancho. Un perro grande tengo yo Y él se llama Sancho -A N CH O, - A N CH O, -A N CH O Y él se llama Sancho (Same verse except one letter is omitted each time)

Level I

We are almost halfway through the semester and the students are doing very well in Spanish. Daily review of the Spanish vocabulary at home is very important and increases students' retention. Please contact Futura Language Professionals or me with any questions about Spanish class.

dieci +	seis	= 16
dieci +	siete	= 17
dieci +	ocho	= 18
dieci +	nueve	e = 19

Notas Culturas / Class Activities

Information

Please contact the Futura Language Professionals Coordinator, SandyO@FuturaAdventures.com with any questions about Spanish class.

Words in Spanish have genders. For example, la familia is feminine and el dinero is masculine. Usually words ending in -a are feminine and words ending in -o are masculine, however there are exceptions to this rule. Counting numbers 16-19 in Spanish can be easy because it is adding ten and the number. For example, dieciseis (16) is: diez (10) y (and) seis (six).

Futura Language Professionals www.FuturaAdventures.com