

Chile!

When you talk about weather, Chile is a great country to talk about! Because it is so long and narrow, the country is divided into three distinct zones. In the South, Patagonia, and Tierra del Fuego the weather is very wintry! The highest temperature in the summer is 52°F. In Central Chile, the weather is very tropical. Summer highs can reach 125°F. There is also a rainy season from May to August.

It may be fun to have the older students create a make believe Chilean weather or season report by pointing to the map!
